Wearing, director of the art department of the club, presented Mr. Charles H. Caffin who gave the ladies a delightful talk on Valesquez, showing lantern slides of his most famous pictures.

He spoke of Valasquez as the greatest naturalist in the whole story of painting.

He lifted naturalism to its highest pitch of expression.

His pictures are great as a result of the greatness of the man."

As Valasquez himself used to say, was his ideal "truth not painting."

It is said of him that "Nature was his guide, truth, his light, man his model."

"Valasquez is always the aristocrat, looking out upon his subjects from the elevations of a superior mental dignity —his pictures show this dignity and aloofness."

His work did not receive its proper years after his death.
